THE SWINEIGHT ZONE

OINK'S ILLUSTRATED LIVES OF THE FAMOUS

THIS WEEK:

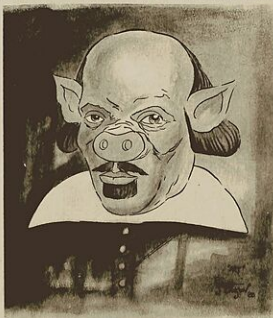

WILLIAM SHAKESPIG

William - Swill to his pals - lived in Fattford-upon-Avon in the Pigteenth Century. He started as an actor, a bit of a ham, but is best known as a playwright, although many people, amazingly enough, believe his plays were really written by a man named Bacon.

Swill was married to Spam Hathaway, and his most famous works include:

The Taming of the Sow; A Midsummer Night's Dirty Great Big Fry-Up; Julius Caesar, the Roman Boar; MacBacon; The Winter's Curly Tail; Munch a Stew about Crackling; Romeo and Juliet Pig-Out; and, of course, Hamlet.

He died in 1613, which was strange, because his doctor thought he was cured.
